PRESS RELEASE

December 3, 2018, Cambridge, Ontario, Canada

Regional Sales Manager, Eastern United States

Jameway would like to announce an expansion to our American Sales Team. Our new Regional Sales Manager for the Eastern United States is Mr. Todd Grisham. In response to the success of Jamesway incubators and hatchers in the North American markets, we are happy to be bringing on board another poultry expert to help customers build their own Worry Free Hatchery. Todd has been involved in the poultry industry since receiving his degree in Poultry Science at Mississippi State University, and has a strong background with focus on the health and development of broiler flocks. His sound knowledge of the industry and its challenges will be a huge asset to our customers who will also find that they are being represented by an extremely conscientious professional. Todd will report to Director of North American Sales, Ken Long.

Todd comes to Jamesway from Keystone Foods and his transition to Jamesway will be seamless, as he works with our existing sales team to understand and help develop new clients and potential in the Eastern United States. Todd has also worked with Marshall Durban, Pilgrim's Pride and Gold Kist in his solid history within the poultry industry and we are confident that his problem solving and profit management skills will benefit our customers on many levels. We welcome Todd to the team this December and hope that those who are in Atlanta for the IPPE will drop by the booth to meet Todd personally.

About Jamesway
